"The Man From Funeral Range"

This new Paramount offering in five reels is enacted by a strong cast headed by Wallace Reid and Ann Little. Willie Marks does some very effective work as Budlong and Tully Marshall is also excellent in the character role of Beckman, a shy lawyer. Lottie Pickford, Phil Ainsworth and George McDaniel also have important parts.

The story itself contains many effective dramatic situations. It was adapted by Monte M. Katterjohn from a play entitled "Broken Threads" written by Ernest Wilkes, and the screen production has been capably directed by Walter Edwards. It contains several situations that are of a conventional type, the crime itself being one of these, but these features have been properly abbreviated and then surrounded by much that is new and unusual. The production is a good example of what can be done in the way of offsetting familiar, or stock situations with new and pleasing incidents.

Wallace Reid and Ann Little make the most of their love scenes. He appears as a man just in from the desert and she as a cabaret singer. His rival is a young lawyer, for whose death the young prospector is held. The dead man's partner, Beckman, succeeds in convicting the hero, though he knows him to be innocent. But in the end the tables are turned and justice prevails. The legal end of this story rings true, and is one of its strongly entertaining features.

"Boots"

After her retirement from the screen for quite a while Dorothy Gish has been coming back strong beginning with her appearance in "Hearts of the World." She has followed this with several delightful pictures, but "The Splendid Sinner"

With half the world at her feet as the mistress of Rudolph Von Zorn, Dolores Fargis is made miserable by her conscience. She despises the man whose chattel she is, and when finally she breaks with him she seeks solace in the quiet of the country. Hugh Maxwell, a young physician, meets her, and falls in love with her. They are married, and not until Von Zorn confronts his former mistress does Maxwell know what manner of a woman he has married, and he leaves her. Dolores becomes a nurse in a French hospital which is under German guard. A wounded soldier entrusts her with dispatches he is bearing to the French. In a burst of feeling husband and wife recognize each other, and they are later arrested for conspiracy. By a splendid sacrifice Dolores enables her husband to escape over the lines.

she has never been seen in anything in which her personality is more appealing than in "Boots." Here she is a slave in a London inn, her life wrapped up in romance which she knows from the books she reads, until a young Scotland Yard detective, posing as a student, comes to the inn to frustrate a plot by Bolsheviks to blow up the hall where the King of England, President Wilson and other dignitaries are to meet. It is "Boots" herself who has the larger share in frustrating the villainess, and the fight between the two women is one of the unique incidents of the picture. While there is plenty of heart interest, it is the comedy that counts. There is a strong supporting cast, including Richard Barthelmess as the young detective. Miss Gish and her tomboyish character are the points to be played up.

OPEN FORUM

Editor, The Maui News: Looking forward to the opening of school and the coming of the Federal School Survey, I am writing you concerning teachers' meetings and organizations.

It seems very desirable, for the advancement of the teaching profession and the welfare of the schools, that the teachers in any given school or community should have meetings (formal or informal), at fairly frequent intervals. This has been suggested by various teachers and principals.

In addition to the annual meetings of the Island Teachers' Association, monthly or bi-monthly meetings (in the various schools or communities) could be held. Some of these meetings could be social, others could be literary, others musical; some might deal with strictly professional matters and others be regular business meetings.

Perhaps it might be possible to revive, in some modified form, the Teachers' Reading Courses which were so popular in Hawaii twenty years ago. Perhaps it may be desirable to reorganize the "National (or Territorial) Teachers' Association," which was first organized in 1882.

The status of education in any state or country is determined, very largely, by the status of the teachers. The status of the teachers is determined.

First: By the tangible and social rewards of teaching.

Second: By the professional attitude of teachers toward their own work and activities.

Teachers' meeting and organizations are particularly helpful in developing professional consciousness, in improving the methods of teaching, and in stimulating a high-minded and effective "morale."

I will be pleased to receive any suggestions or comments from you, and to learn of any progress along these lines in your local communities. Teachers' clubs and associations in Hawaii should be an integral part of the rising tide of democracy in education.

Cordially yours,
VAUGHAN M'CAUGHEY
Superintendent.

Kahului Harbor Ready Next Year

By the beginning of next year, according to information given out by Colonel H. C. Newcomer, engineer officer of the Hawaiian department, work now in progress at Kahului will be completed, and the harbor area will be increased about 30 per cent.

The work now going on is being done, by the Hawaiian Dredging company, under a rivers and harbors appropriation. When completed, the protected area within the breakwaters will be 900 feet wide, about 1600 feet long, with a uniform depth of 30 feet. In order to carry out this program, it is necessary to dredge about 180,000 cubic yards. The contract price for the work was $87,000.

Editor of Maui News: It has been called to my attention that certain promoters of the proposed new cannery at Haiku have stated to the pineapple growers and others interested that my brother, Mr. F. F. Baldwin, and I and, by inference, the interests we represent, are in a way backing the project and that it had our entire approval. Will you kindly permit me to state through your columns that this statement, if made, is contrary to facts? We believe that the Haiku Fruit & Packing Co., can handle all of the pines grown in the Haiku section and that there is not room for another cannery there at present. I personally believe that the growers will receive just treatment from the present management of the cannery and that there is no need of there being a competing cannery in order to insure the growers a fair price for their crops.

Respectfully yours,
H. A. BALDWIN.

SPECIAL STOCKHOLDERS MEETING

There will be a special meeting of the stockholders of the Wailuku Soda & Ice Works, Ltd., at its place of business in Wailuku, Maui, T. H., on Saturday, August 2nd, 1919 at 7 P. M., for the purpose of considering the matter of consolidation.

Respectfully yours,

H. Y. CHUCK, Secretary.

The Water Front

The 3400-ton steamship "Nagusa" was launched on July 2 from the ways of the Moore Shipbuilding Company at Oakland, Cal. Miss Nora Hansen, Victory loan worker, sponsored the craft, which is the 321st to be sent into the water from the Moore yards. A bottle of sparkling California wine saved for the occasion, gave what will probably prove to be one of the last "wet" christenings to an American ship. A banquet at the Hotel Oakland, followed the launching. On Admission Day, September 9, six ships will be launched at the Moore yards as part of the celebration planned by the city.

The Matsen freighter Hyades, from Kahului, July 14, arrived at San Francisco July 24.

S. S. Silverado sailed from Kahului, at 6:30 p. m., on July 28 with 1411 tons of sugar, 55009 cases of pineapples and 15 tons of general merchandise direct for San Francisco.

Steam schooner Port Angeles arrived July at 5:45 a. m., July 28 from Puget Sound with a cargo of lumber.

Passengers from Maui who will sail to the coast on the Lurline are: Norman Wells, Miss McLaren, Miss Elsie Brink, Miss Thelma Boyum, Miss Anna Walker and Mrs. John Vasconcellos, Miss Mary Vasconcellos Miss H. Vasconcellos.

Just what was the matter with the last Congress has puzzled the nation, but the fact that a majority looked on toothpaste as a luxury ought to throw some light on the subject.—New York Herald.
